(Q. Nos. 31 to 38 ) Read the following passage carefully and answer any six questions.

There was a great excitement at Vishwanath Dutta's house. It was the 12th January, Little Naren's birthday. The house was decorated with flowers.

From the kitchen came the delicious aroma of the feast that was being prepared for the relatives and friends who had been invited.

Naren's mother laid out the new clothes Naren would wear. Naren, freshly bathed came out of the bathroom and said his prayer. Then he quickly wore the new clothes that had been bought for him. It was just what he had wanted ! A silk dhoti and kurta and a warm shawl, exactly like clothes his father wore to the court. Carefully he combed his hair and then proud as a peacock he strutted before the huge mirror !

While he was admiring himself, he heard a beggar calling for alms. He ran to the window, and saw a wretched family shivering in the cold. As he heard their sad and painful cries, it pierced his heart. Quickly he opened the window and took off the shawl and threw it down. Then followed his kurta and the dhoti.

A little while later his mother came to find him dressed in his old clothes. Naren said, "they were shivering in the cold so I .....", The mother scolded, "Will you give away everything just because someone needs it". In this way you will become a monk.

Naren's mother's words were to come true. Naren gave up the world to serve the poor and today we know him as Swami Vivekananda.

31. Why there was great excitement at the Dutta's house ?

32. What were the clothes bought for Naren ?

33. What did he see outside the window ?

34. What did he do after seeing outside ?

35. Why did the mother scold Naren ?

36. What was the name of Naren's father ?

37. What words of Naren's mother came true ?

38. Find the similar words from the passage which mean the same as

a) smell

b) charity.

Section - B*खण्ड - B

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow :

There are a number of reasons why we must conserve the world's plants and animals. Plants are essential for our own survival. Only they can use the sun's energy to make food. So, plants are the vital first link in the food chain of which we ourselves form part. One of the by-products of the food making process in plants is oxygen, without which very few forms of life can exist on earth.

Animals need plants in order to survive, but plants also need animals. All animals and plants are bound together in delicately balanced communities or ecosystems. The removal of just one species can drastically alter a whole ecosystem.

Our own survival may be threatened if we cause too much disruption to the natural processes that occur in this planet. The destruction of the world's rain forest is causing some concern in this respect. In some areas the removal of the rain forest has already reduced the local rainfall. Some scientists suggest that if too much forest is destroyed, the rainfall in crop-growing areas will decrease, and these areas will become deserts.

Another important reason for preserving wildlife is that it is a potentially inexhaustible natural resource. We use many plants and animals to supply us with food, materials and chemicals. If we exploit these species to the points at which they cannot replenish themselves, they will no longer be available to us. At the moment we understand the biology of only a tiny fraction of the world's wildlife. We do not know what useful materials we will lose in this destruction.

39. On the basis of your reading of the above passage make a note on it. You may use headings, sub-headings and abbreviations. 5
